SITUATION SUMMARY

BART confirms dates, details of upcoming Transbay Tube closures

BART is encouraging travelers to plan ahead and to find alternate means of transportation across the Bay during two upcoming closures of Transbay train service. BART will close the West Oakland Station and will not run trains between West Oakland and Embarcadero stations the first weekend in August and during Labor Day weekend while we repair a critical section of track near the Transbay Tube.

BART will offer lifeline bus service between 19th Street in Oakland and the Temporary Transbay Terminal in San Francisco, but the buses are intended only for those who have no other options. The buses will carry customers from 19th Street Station in Oakland to the Temporary Transbay Terminal in San Francisco or from there back to the East Bay. There will be no additional charge for the bus. The bus bridge will cause 1 to 2 hour delays for some customers.

During the shutdowns, train service within the East Bay and within the West Bay and the Peninsula will be more frequent than during a typical weekend.

The dates and times of the track closures are as follows:

August 1-2 from end of service Friday and all day Saturday and Sunday September 5-7 from end of service Friday and all day Saturday, Sunday and Monday

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

A building ridge aloft will bring hot weather conditions to the interior Thursday and Friday. At the coast, a shallow marine layer will continue to result in areas of stratus and patchy fog. An upper level low off the central California coast will bring a threat of thunderstorms starting late Friday afternoon into Friday night. The threat for storms will continue on Saturday.

Medford Weather:

The forecast is for a long period of hot and unstable conditions. Hot weather begins today and a slight chance to chance of thunderstorms in portions of the region begins Friday afternoon with a persistent longwave pattern of strong ridging centered in the southwest portion of the country through at least Wednesday.

Reno Weather:

High pressure will produce very hot and dry conditions this week with record highs likely by Friday. Thunderstorms are possible along the sierra crest starting on Friday with the potential for increased thunderstorm coverage for the weekend through early next week.

San Francisco Weather:

Much warmer weather remains on track for today, especially for the inland areas. Increasing mid and high clouds and slightly cooler temperatures are expected over the weekend. Temperatures will warm up again early next week and there is a slight chance of thunderstorms over the Monterey and San Benito county interior and mountains.

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Sacramento Weather:

Hot weather this week, peaking Thursday and Friday. Mountain shower and thunderstorm activity Friday through the middle of next week. Thunderstorms may initially contain limited rainfall creating an increased fire threat.

Hanford Weather:

A ridge of high pressure parked over the four corners region will bring dry weather and above normal temperatures to the central California interior through Friday. A northward influx of monsoonal moisture will bring an increasing chance of thunderstorms to mainly the higher terrain Friday through Tuesday.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

Afternoon temperatures will remain above normal across inland areas with cooler conditions along the coastal areas through Friday. A change in the weather pattern will begin this weekend as a surge of monsoonal moisture will move into the region bringing humid and warm conditions with periods of showers and possible thunderstorms.

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

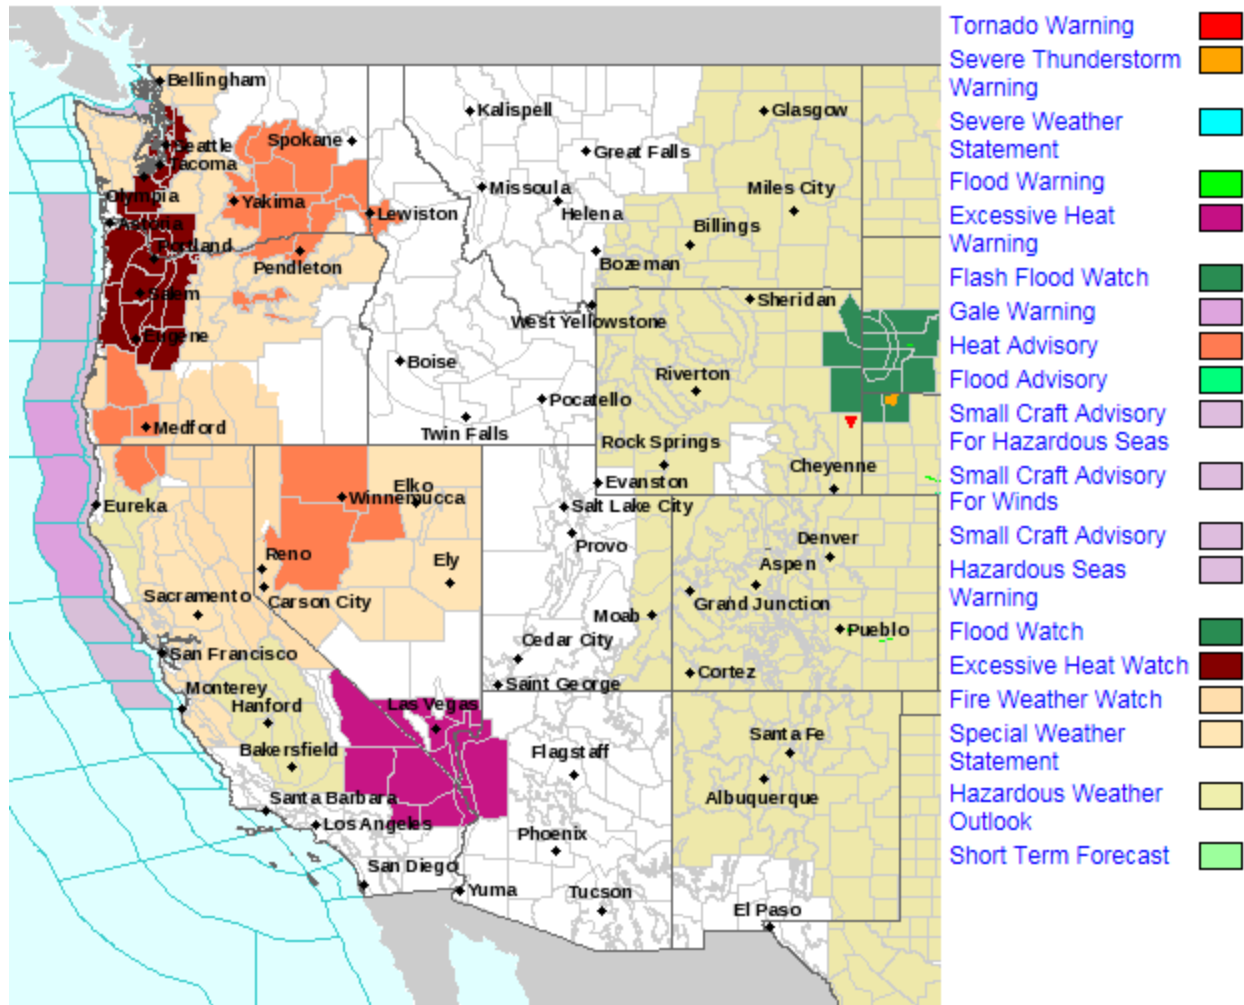

High pressure will bring fair and warm weather this week with some coastal clouds each night and morning. Monsoonal moisture will increase this weekend and continue into next week, which will bring humid conditions, along with more clouds and a chance of showers and thunderstorms mainly in the mountains and deserts.

Southeast California Weather:

Above normal temperatures will persist across the region through the weekend. Thunderstorms are expected to be largely confined to the White Mountains and southeast Arizona through Saturday, but with strong winds and areas of blowing dust possible on the lower deserts due to distant storms. More humid air is anticipated to overspread the region beginning later in the weekend with storm chances expanding too many lower desert locations by early next week. The increase in monsoon storm activity could lead to slightly cooler daytimes but warmer overnights.
